The BUBBLERS MIRROUR: or ENGLANDS FOILEY

Behold a Canting Miser who of late,
For twice the value sold a faire Estate
To purchase South Sea Stock, in hopes to grow
As rich as Croesus, e'er it fell so low;
But fickle-Fortune, that inconstant Queen
Turning her Wheel and changing of the Scene,
Expos'd the Fraud that had so long prevail'd,
And with her Frowns the rising Monster quell'd
Cross'd the vain hopes of each aspiring breast,
And ruind poor old Cant among the rest,
Who now no more of South Sea conduct brags,
But mourns his folly o'er his Empty Bags;
Raves at the tricks a pack of Knaves have play'd
And Curses those for whom before he Pray'd;
So he that Games and is by Dice undone,
Damns his ill fortune, when the fault's his own.
